- Qualitative Research on ELT

3

- Examples of Qualitative Research

What is Research?

- Research is the systematic process of collecting and analysing information (data) in order to increase our understanding of the phenomenon with which we are concerned or interested.
- Research involves three main stages:
 - planning
 - data collection
 - analysis.

What is Qualitative Research?

"NOT EVERYTHING THAT COUNTS
CAN BE COUNTED
AND NOT
EVERYTHING THAT
CAN BE COUNTED
COUNTS."

What is Qualitative Research?

If the answer is NO, then you probably need qualitative research method

Qualitative Research answers questions about:

What is Qualitative Research?

- Qualitative research properly seeks answers to questions by examining various social settings and the individuals who inhabit there (Berg, 1995)
- or about phenomena that occur in daily lives of people (Seliger and Shohamy, 1989)

- Qualitative methods can generate a comprehensive description of processes, mechanisms, or setting

Qualitative

- Approach: Inductive
- Goal: Depth, generate hypotheses
- Setting: Natural
- Sampling: Purposeful
- Data collection: e.g., interview guides, observation tools
- Data analysis: iterative interpretation

Quantitative

- Approach: Deductive
- Goal: Breadth, test hypotheses
- Setting: Experimental/ Quasi
- Sampling: Random
- Data collection: e.g., surveys, administrative/ clinical data
- Data analysis: statistical tests, modeling

Mention Some Types of Qualitative Research

Types	Approach to Research or Enquiries	Data Collection Methods	Data Analysis Methods	Forms in Scientific Writing
Narrative	Explores situations, scenarios and processes	Interviews and documents	Storytelling, content review and theme (meaning development)	In-depth narration of events or situations
Case study	Examination of episodic events with focus on answering "how" questions	Interviews, observations, document contents and physical inspections	Detailed identification of themes and development of narratives	In-depth study of possible lessons learned from a case or cases
Grounded theory	Investigates procedures	Interviews and questionnaire	Data coding, categorisation of themes and description of implications	Theory and theoretical models
Historical	Description of past events	Interviews, surveys and documents	Description of events development	Historical reports
Phenomenological	Understand or explain experiences	Interviews, surveys and observations	Description of experiences, examination of meanings and theme development	Contextualisation and reporting of experience
